EXPERIENCE

An-Najah National University Jan 2017 - Current

- Evaluated graduation projects and oral defense for senior students from the Department of English Language and Literature as a member of the examining committee.
- Coordinated E101 which is a university English required course with more than 1,500 students enrolled in it.
- Attended different workshops and training courses, including a training course on competency-based education approach (CBE).
- Helped to develop the English in the Workplace course, taught to engineering and commerce students. This included the development of the course's syllabus, outline, textbook, assessment criteria and exams. As a result, the course became more practical, authentic and communicative, so students would acquire skills needed to excel in the workplace. All of these efforts convinced the dean to change the course from being non-credit to a 3-credit hour course.
